

The aim of my diploma work is to present summary of transit programs in the Czech Republic and to map their contribution to quality of life of handicapped people. My work will consist of finding out how transit programs facilitate handicapped people their integration into usual life, how they help them to realize their plans and organize their leisure time. In short, what kind of services these programs offer to their clients.

The integrál part of my work will be a description of the situation of handicapped people in the Czech Republic (the description of their needs, current legislative) and drawing up case studies which will illustrate obtained knowledge.