

The role of social worker in a team of professional dedicated to the dying and their loved ones is unsubstitutable. Its activities focus on practical help for the dying and their families, such as raising finance for the care and handling of procedural matters related to admission to medical facilities.

Another important role of social workers to care for dying and their families, to assist in dealing with new social roles, which comes for the illness and the limitations caused by it.

His other field of activity is coordinating the work of volunteers and their participation in expert teams.

Overall, in Czech society must get rid of death and dying taboo status, acquired in recent decades. It is necessary to returne back the dying to their loved ones and, if possible, to their homes. Encourage people not to be afraid to care for their loved ones. Promote quality treatment of pain and not leave a dying needlessly suffer. It is necessary to create and pass laws that will adjust the documents such as Living Will and Do Not Resuscitate.
