

Abstract

In master thesis “U.S. Foreign Policy under Ronald Reagan: Strategic Defense Initiative and disarmament process” is analysed development of the Strategic Defense Initiative and consequent disarmament process in the second half of 1980’s. At the beginning of the thesis it is mentioned a stadium of disarmament by the end of 1970’s, but the main attention focuses on the Ronald Reagan’s presidential administration, when the development of the SDI started. Master thesis also analyses disarmament dialogue among representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union, which started in Geneva in 1985, and continued in Reykjavik, Washington, and Moscow.