Topic of Bachelor work is preparation for sacrament of confirmation. This preparation is concentrated on adolescents or young adults. It also deals with the importance of sacrament of confirmation for present man.

It doesn't exist the only one method of preparation. We can formulate several points: real dialog including place for discussions and questions and private dialogs face to face, preparation in group or combination of complex and small groups. Addition is reading, chapel, participation in parish and joint actions, home preparation. The method also includes clearly handed up teaching, concrete implementation into praying practices and evidence of witnesses. The length of preparation is calculated for months, preparation leads one priming having preparation team available.

Résumé is divided into five chapters. The first one deals with the importance of sacrament of confirmation from the Catholic Church point of view and from the documents of 2nd Vatican council point of view. Next chapter deals with the addressee of catechetical: it includes the characteristic of target group, the meaning and the importance of preparation within the group (community), priming requirements and distinction of two models of preparation according to starting situation of adepts:

- preparation as a return to Catholic Church
- preparation as a cavity of belief

In the third chapter is spoken on the aim of the preparation that is the cavity of personal relation to Christ, transformation and consolidation of right attitudes and styles of behaviour, finding answers for questions of life, engagement into community of young Christians in chapelry, eventually dean's office.

Semi-final chapter deals with the method and the last one includes the proposal of concrete catechetical cycle with the example of their elaboration.

Through the use of available literature in Czech language I managed to confirm that sacrament of confirmation and the preparation for this sacrament still fill important and irreplaceable place in the Church. It is a big chance for adults and young people to find and to strengthen their belief or a way back to Catholic Church.

This work can be used as one of the sources for priming for sacrament of confirmation.
