Abstract

This work deals with the presentation of the Czech aspect of the Arabic speakers. The aspect is one of the most problematic areas of Czech grammar, which requires a special attention by the practitioners. The work seeks to create a method suitable for the teaching of Arabic speakers through their original Arabic tongue as a language that very clearly indicates the aspect. The current dissertation work also discusses the shortcomings that challenges both czech grammar and textbook of Czech for foreigners and the recommendations contained in dissertation attempts to avoid such shortcomings.