

Summary:

This work is dedicated to phenomenon of summer apartments in the 1st half of 20th century, especially to village Senohraby, which was used mainly as an example. This work tries to show means of spending free time in summer resorts and means of entertainment specifically in the surroundings of Prague, because of it's nearness to capital city. Important part of this work is dedicated to question, what sorts of guests were spending times in this summer resorts. And this work also wants to show some aspects of life before First World War and during 1st republic in Czechoslovakia.