

The Bachelor Thesis focuses on panel painting, not from a display point of view, but its physical evidence as an object; the links between the space in which the object exists and the image space. It also covers the specific features, such as; the back of the panel paintings, the original medieval decorated frames or the possible relation to different types of relics. It deals with quite a wide range of subjects relating to similar issues, concerning specific examples of panel paintings.