

This work discusses the roles of second-order cone programming, these tasks are a special class semidefinitního programming. The work summarized basic definitions, properties and claims known about these tasks. Special attention is paid to methods of solving SOCP problems. In the last part of the paper are formulated in some special tasks of mathematical programming (linear programming, quadratic programming, ...) as special cases of SOCP problems.