

Abstract:

Prague is a city with a high concentration of foreigners from various countries who live here and are faced with many social problems. I am trying to identify, describe and understand these problems of foreigners living in Prague in the empirical part of this work, based on the secondary analysis of deep conversations and interviews provided by the Organization for Aid to Refugees and Counselling Centre for Integration. The theoretical part is focused on the issue of migration and integration, both in general and in relation to the Czech Republic.
