

Abstract:

This bachelor thesis analyzes – from a health care professionals perspective-an issue of dying and death. In the theoretical part ,terms concerning dying and death are highlighted and described. Attention is also given to needs of dying patients, grief and some ethical questions are raised. Palliative and hospice care is also mentioned. Main component of this thesis is a quantitative research. The research investigates health care professionals opinion on some issues related to care in terminally ill and dying patients. A level of composure in care givers is also being discussed.