Abstract

This bachelor thesis is focused on introduction of Prague city archives, as important memory institution belonging to Czech information society. First chapter of this thesis is dedicated to historical development of archives. In the next chapter are defined functions, activities and services of this institution. Next parts of the thesis describe buildings, where the archives is located, organizational structure of this institution as well as the structure of collections, funds, and library. The last chapter is touching the major problem of Prague city archives which is storing of electronic archivals.