

Abstract:

Bachelor work „Aggressive behaviour of football spectators“ concerns analyzing aggression Czech fans of football teams, which plays in the Gambrinus League. The aim is to monitor the scene and try to suggest possible measures and ways to improve security at stadiums, find out where risk situations come of and draw possible conclusions to prevent them in the future.

Bachelor work have two parts. The first part is theoretical and its focused on the obtaining of knowledge and definition of terms related to a better understanding of the problem. Further, to characterize the environment around football clubs, focusing mainly on the Czech clubs with the largest audience base.

The practical part is devoted to collecting information, its subsequent analysis and comparison of achieved results. On the basis of this results the author tries to suggest improvements of the current options in the security field. The research methods are observation, interview, descriptive and comparative analysis.

Key words: aggression, violence in stadiums, a sport spectator, a football fan, ultras, hooligans, an observation