

Abstract

Bachelor thesis sets a task to give a brief outline of the history of Bengal when it was a part of the Mughal empire. It is divided into 3 parts. The first part is focused on the period when the inhabitants of Bengal were familiarizing with the new religion, with Islamism, which was coming to the Indian sub-continent and on the way it was becoming the part of the local culture.

The second part describes Bengal as a part of the Mughal empire until the government was obtained by the British. And the third part depicts the Mughal cultural and intellectual heritage.
