

SUMMARY

This thesis is literature search dealing with the nitrogen present in natural waters and its impact on aquatic ecosystems. Another described issue is the origin of nitrogen in natural waters, and possible ways of eliminating its concentration, including wastewater treatment. This work can be used for practical research as a literature review of the issue and ways of its solution.