

Abstract

The bachelor thesis “The way of the National Democratic Party of Germany into the Parliament of Saxony in 1995-2004 and its reception in the selected Czech media” deals with the phenomena of the right-wings extremism in Saxony, one of the five new states of the Federal Republic of Germany. The goal of the submitted bachelor thesis is to describe and analyze the causes of the increase in support for the NPD. The first part is concentrated on describing the consequences of the socio-economic impact from reunifying on the population. In the second part, the NDP’s new internal orientation since the mid-1990s is focused. Also the profile of the followers, respectively the specifics of the supporters of the NDP in Saxony will be considered and described. Part of the work is also dedicated to the reception in the Czech media (Mladá fronta Dnes and Ústecký deník). Finally, the reception in these regional and national daily journals will be compared.
