

Summary

The presented work deals with the state of research of medicinal substances in water formations of Czech Republic and in smaller amount it deals with this issue abroad. It provides an overview of the most frequently occurring medicinal substances and methods for their detection and also describes the possible sources of pollution and impact of these substances on the environment.

Keywords: ground water, surface water, drugs, contamination