Family planning in Egypt

Abstract

The objective of this paper is to explore family planning in terms of its main purposes, spreading in the world and developing countries. The key aim is to analyze family planning in Egypt as in one of the most populated countries of the world and to evaluate the success of programs, which are orientated to reduce fertility levels. Based on available data this paper tries to examine population trends, which take place in the country over the last few decades.

Key words: family planning, Egypt, fertility, contraception, developing countries