

Abstract (in English):

The main topic of this bachelor thesis is the professional training of humanitarian and development workers, working on the missions abroad in the Global South countries. The main focus is on the intercultural training. This thesis describes the specifics of humanitarian and development missions, cultural adaptation and follows up the impact of culture on humanitarian and development work and the possibilities of a professional training.

The main goal of this work is to characterize a professional training for workers preparing to work abroad. Part of this goal was to compare several Czech and international organizations. A survey was made to reach this goal. In the conclusion is a summary of the information that was found and the recommendations.

