Olga Nislenko introduced briefly methods, sources, structure and major results of her thesis. The Opponent and both supervisors found the thesis inspirational, and praised Olga's analytical strength and unbiased approach. The chapters on struggles about cultural policies and appropriation of Soviet heritage were particularly enjoyed. The debate focused on the alleged uniqueness of Transnistria within post-soviet territory and various factors of its specific identity formation. A comparison with Abkhazia and South Ossetia was suggested as very promising.
