The thesis discusses the method of reflex locomotion and its impact on persons with disabilities. The theoretical part describes the method of introduction to the topic of reflex locomotion - diagnostics that precedes it, its definition, indicate the course of therapy, developmental ontogeny, therapeutic system, justifies the possible causes of failure of therapy. It also shows the personality of Vaclav Vojta and the history of its concept. The practical part is focused on the perception of reflex locomotion methods by clients.