

Summary

Title:

Case report of therapeutic care patient with lateral humeral epicondylitis

Object of paper:

The primary aim of this work is to demonstrate both theoretical and practical information to the subject of lateral humeral epicondylitis on the grounds of a case report of a patient with this diagnosis, which was established during a hospital university-internship.

Abstract:

The general part of this work includes theoretical information about lateral humeral epicondylitis, or generally known as enthesopathies, their diagnostic and possibilities of treatment. Where as the specific part of this bachelor dissertation shows a case report of a patient with lateral humeral epicondylitis. The materials and foundation of this bachelor dissertation were gathered during an university-internship at regional hospital Kladno.

Key words:

Tennis-elbow, overuse, conservative therapy, prevention