

Abstract

This bachelor thesis is based on existing studies that should explain a broader context of the value of responsibility of the students of secondary schools. The thesis should also classify these values and their transformation in certain periods of life. The first part of the thesis is aimed at the value of responsibility in connection with several existentialists, for example Søren Kirkegaard, Gabriel Marcel and Jean-Paul-Sartre. The second part of the thesis is concentrated on psychological aspects of consciousness. It also includes the definitions of basic concepts concerning the value of responsibility. The third part of the thesis deals with the value of responsibility based on the theory of an individual moral development. This theory is also a background of the study of value orientation of young people according to Sak and Saková. Finally, the value of responsibility is discussed from the sociological interpretation.

Keywords

value , responsibility, moral development, existentialism