

The theoretical part of this bachelor thesis is focused on establishment Military hospital in Brno and its historical events. The conditions of hospital wards are described during the years 1968 – 1988 to the present in more details. The practical part includes qualitative research, which was performed by semi – structured interview. This interview captures the opinions of one doctor a four nurses about changes in labour conditions, education of nurses and their actual role in society.