Abstract

Presidential election in 1935

This work concentrates on presidential election in 1935, when the second Czechoslovakia president was elected. There is a description of internal political relations from 1929, which precede the election, presidential candidates and their chances for success. Next part of the study describes opinions of politics relations, which decided election and opinion of the President T. G. Masaryk. Work includes the point of view of newspaper, which were published in 1935. At the end of work are election results and their impact on Czechoslovakia.