

The Viva Progress Report /průběh obhajoby/

Programme: Erasmus Mundus MA/Mgr. Special and Inclusive Education

Module: Dissertation

Module code: ERM030L003S

Student Name: Diana Oliveros

Diana first presented design of the research project, research problems and the aims. The research problem was justified by research analyses and her general interest in political science. Diana then presented methods used for analysing the data.

Discussion was focused on the following questions spelled out by the evaluators:

1. What are the main challenges for improving democratic environment at the study program teaching at primary school? How they could relate to students 'understanding of inclusivity?
2. What do you recommend for future students of Erasmus Mundus program – how they can attach participants for interviews?

Diana proved her extensive knowledge of democratic principles linked to the academic regulations and procedures.

Some methodological recommendations based on the experience gained were used to answer the questions.

Overall, her presentation was informatively balanced and structured logically.
