

This master's thesis deals with the broad issue of the preparation of young people from children's homes for their independent life, with a special emphasis on Prague and the central-Bohemian region. The theoretical part of the thesis studies the activities and competence of the relevant state institutions as compared to NGOs, in particular Dům Naděje in Vršovice, which are approached in the empirical part, in order to define the role of the state and civil sector in this process.