

Abstract:

Crohn's disease

The Bachelor study summarizes the present knowledge of inflammatory diseases, which attack the digestive system. The Crohn's disease is classified as idiopathic or nonspecific intestine inflammations, since its cause is still not known. In my thesis I describe the general characteristics of the Crohn's disease, the possible causes, the symptoms of the disease and the subsequent therapy.

Key words: Crohn's disease, nonspecific intestine inflammations