

Graduation Exam is in many countries a prerequisite for admission to a university, opening the door to further education. At present, it is also increasingly criteria for admission to employment. It tries to accomplish a greater number of people and its level is often discussed. This paper deal with the history of education in the Czech Republic and Poland. It summarizes the system leaving examinations and their level. The emphasis is on the subject of geography. Analyzes educational tests, which were awarded graduates with their graduation in the spring term of 2012. It examines the required knowledge and skills, roles to categories within the field of geography and discusses the type of the task.