Risk is a computer program for playing the classic version of board game Risk independently on the operating system, enabling multiplayer mode on one or more computers connected through a local network or the internet. Network communication is running according to pre-established protocol, so the Risk can communicate with other programs made for the Risk playing, while they utilize this protocol. Program provides several types of opponents with different difficulties controlled by computer, who are able to challenge both beginners and experienced players.