ABSTRAKT:

Topic of the final thesis is dedicated to the public administration of police education and legal status of schools of the Ministry of the Interior. Particular attention is paid to police colleges of the Ministry of the Interior and their public administration. The thesis maps general legal provisions in the area of state administration of education and special legal provisions in force for some special types of schools, which serves the needs of an education of armed forces and security forces, especially Police of the Czech Republic.

The final work in detail assesses the scope of authority of Ministry the Interior towards police colleges and colleges of fire protection which are founded by the Ministry. In detail it describes and analyses deviations from general legal provisions in the area of education law and law concerning pedagogical staff in relation to these colleges and its pedagogical workers. It also compares current state in area of authorisation to set up special types of schools by some ministries, which towards these schools exercise the same powers as normally exercises the Ministry of Education, Youth and Sports.

In cases when differences were found, it assesses their legitimacy in relation to special legal provisions which governs functioning of police colleges of Ministry of the Interior and Police of the Czech Republic, potential weak points of this legal frame and possible legislative rectification.
