

Sexually transmitted diseases, commercial sexual exploitation of children, deviant behavior, homophobia are all problems of our time. Many states deal with this phenomena by intervention in the education system and places great emphasis on prevention. Czech Republic society still isn't a kind of society with many of the characters as mature and democratic society which undoubtedly follows the awareness of children about these issues.

The influence of Christianity, traditional values and behaviors, and certain puritanism still persists in our society. Eligibility of family model claiming the exclusive right to raise their children with regards to the parents possibilities in today's hectic modern society has complicated application. Children are mainly imposed on the media in various forms of sexuality which causes confusion of children and a sense of moral release. The emphasis is on enjoyment, fun and easy and carefree life which is not a mirror of reality.

Educate children on sexual issues, although it should be primarily a family affair, but as already mentioned, due to social changes and transformation of structures of society and family. School should have or would have enough of space for professional educators and for a general overview and prevention of sexually transmitted diseases, unwanted pregnancy or other pathological phenomena.

This work emphasizes the need to care about children's sexuality which is not only a matter of maturity but something with we have already been born with.
