The comparison of structural organizing of Czech elite team and NHL team

Objectives:

The aim of this study is to compare organizational structures of hockey clubs. Based on the comparative analysis are set out practical recommendations for improvement or change in the organizational unit.

Methods:

To obtain the data were used qualitative research methods. It is a method of comparative analysis and structured interview.

Results:

It was found that both clubs have very elaborate organizational structure, they belong in the top ice hockey teams. The benefits in both cases is the attractiveness of ice hockey and special events for fans and communication with them. The Sparta's disadvantages Czech economic situation. Benefit of Chicago is financial side, but unlike Sparta does not focus so much on youth players. But this is due to the fact that their primary focus is the National Hockey League.
