The thesis "Women after Mastectomy in the context of Social Work" deals with the topic of diagnosis of breast cancer, treatments and their side effects, itself, however focuses mainly on the psychological and social consequences that come along with such a serious illness. It aims to outline the possibilities that women with this diagnosis can use, and ultimately points out the great potential of social work within the health care system.