

This master's thesis aims to introduce the concept of social economy, the development and the status of the social economy organizations in France and the Czech Republic, in particular the structure, history, financial resources and legal framework of cooperatives, one of the four key parts of social economy. By comparison of sectors in both states it explains the present situation and aims to suggest new challenges and inspiration for the implementation process of social economy concept and cooperatives in the Czech Republic.