Theological roots and contemporary theology of the New Apostolic Reformation

Aleš Franc

NAR is fast growing part of contemporary protestantism and finds its roots in Charismatic Movement. There exists the belief in the existence of a renewed institutions of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers. In this sense the Church is understood as an institution of the last time that - under the „apostolic government“ - grows into eschatological fullness. Then it leaves denominational organization, unites with, and becomes the incarnation of Christ. Then the Church dominates the nations and establishing God's kingdom on earth. This teaching has its roots in the theory of ransom to the Devil. It is assumed that Adam was created as the ruler of this world. But Adam's fall gave his property to Satan and Satan became the ordinary god of this world. But now Christ's sacrifice to Satan redeemed the world from Satan's hands and gave it back to believers.
