

In this thesis we focus on implementation of a standalone application for procedural modelling of buildings. We are then testing our implementation by modelling several buildings based on buildings in real life. Apart from our implementation, we are providing a short overview into already existing methods. This thesis also includes programming and user documentation.