

Annotation

Based on the author's multidisciplinary studies and practical experience, the bachelor thesis presents use of new didactic material for teaching elemental recorder skills to preschool aged children in elementary arts schools. Experimental teaching verifies possibilities and influences of musical stories on the development of children's musical skills as well as on their expected social and personal skills at the beginning of the sensitive period.