Abstract

The title of the bachelor thesis: Idiomatic equivalents in French and Czech context

Key words: Folk literature, idioms, proverbs, comparisons, folk sayings, rhetorics, Czech-French analytic study

The bachelor thesis called Idiomatic equivalents in French and Czech context is an analytic study of two languages – French and Czech. The main aim of this work is to find differences between French and Czech sayings. The thesis is divided into several thematically separated parts. A term folk literature will be introduced in the beginning and particular terms will be chosen for further examination. The thesis will deal with idioms, proverbs, folk sayings and comparisons, and their history, meaning and use in French and Czech language will be the object of this work. Another part of the thesis will be focused on categories close to idioms, such as maxims, sentences and rhetorics. In the end the author will try to find new forms of idioms.

The goal of the thesis is a linguistic study, in which particular French and Czech idioms will be found and compared.
