

Abstract

Title: Case study physiotherapy treatment of a patient after intracranial hemorrhage

Target: The target of this bachelor's thesis is a summary of theoretical knowledge about the issue of stroke and case report of physiotherapy treatment of patients after intracranial hemorrhage.

Method: The bachelor's thesis is divided into two parts. In the general part deals with the theoretical knowledge of strokes, including the question of prevention. In the general part is well informed about the rehabilitation of neurologically ill patients. In the special part of the thesis is a case report of patient care. There is an input kinesiology analysis on the basis of the determined short-term and long-term physiotherapy plan. The following are recorded all therapeutic units that patient has. Based on the output kinesiological analysis of the effect therapy was evaluated. Case report has been prepared in the course of continuous practice in the Regional Hospital in Kladno during the 6th - 31st January 2014.

Key words: stroke, hemorrhage, physiotherapy, case study