

Abstract

The topic of this bachelor thesis is the Romanesque church of the St. Mikuláš (Nicolas) in Potvorov in the western part of Bohemia. The first part of this thesis is dedicated to the history of the village Potvorov and to Potvorov's parish and to the history of the church itself. In this context are also sketched out the efforts for the style reconstruction (Romanization) of the church from the first half of 20th century. The second part of the thesis is focused on the building of the church itself – the description of the exterior and the interior of the St. Nicola's church, including contemporary state of the furniture. The last part of the thesis is dedicated to the artistic-historical survey of the building, it includes the opinions of the researchers/scientists, that have explored style development of the church and that were interested in inspiration sources and influences that had impressed on the artistic interpretation of the St. Nicolas Church.
