The title of the Bachelors theses: Resuscitation procedures development and the level of knowledge of non – medical hospital attendants.

In the theoretical part of my work I deal with the resuscitation procedures development from the beginning to the year 2005 when The European Council for Resuscitation issued new recommendations for help in the case of a sudden circulation failure and life – threatening situations – so called Guideliness 2005.

In the empirical part of my research I would like to use an anonymous questionnaire to find out the level of knowledge of resuscitation procedures of non – medical hospital attendants. In the conclusion of my work I compare the research results between the Liberec Regional Hospital and the Medical First – aid Service of the Liberec Region.
