

The bachelor thesis „ Supervision as a tool of support for workers of dosshouses in the Czech Republic“ is looking into supervision as the important form of support for workers who offer the Social Support work directly to homeless persons in the Shelters according to § 63 108/2006. It describes in detail the work offered, focusing on the organisational structure of the Shelters and the competence of workers within. It points out the problem situations which commonly occur in the Shelters while Social service is offered within the Shelters in the Czech Republic and asks the question whether the supervision sorts these problems out.