

Abstract

My bachelor thesis is devoted to Profiles of Care Occupations in MMPI-2. The thesis is divided into 2 parts –a theoretical and an empirical.

The theoretical part explains the expressions such as „personality“, „caring“, „prosocial behaviour“, „care occupations“ and „volunteerism“. I describe the personality of a care occupation mainly from the point of view of individual personal characteristics. The explanation of the characteristics is based on the researched facts. I operate with a questionnaire Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory 2 in the empirical part of thesis, I decided to include an introduction of this psychodiagnostic procedure and I focus it on diagnosing those personal characteristics that are connected to care occupation personality.

Empirical part of thesis is devoted to a research based on following questions:
1) Do psychologists, the representatives of care occupations, show this characteristics in a questionnaire MMPI-2 that are commonly connected to care occupations in general? 2) Do the psychologists differ from volunteers in their scores in MMPI-2 (in terms of comparing profiles of personal characteristics of those 2 named groups)?
