

Abstract

This thesis includes theoretical part about movement, physical activity, physical abilities and skills. It describes body growing and motor development of preschool age children.

The practical part is focused on results processing of anthropometric measurements and motorial tests regard to the various movement mode.