

Summary: This thesis deals with rheumatoid arthritis. General part focuses on the characteristics of the disease rheumatoid arthritis and its treatment methods. Special part is devoted to the case study of patient with rheumatoid arthritis. There is included input kinesiology analysis, short-term and long-term therapeutic plan, the course of therapy with different therapeutic units, output kinesiology analysis and finally evaluation of the therapy effect.