Abstract

This bachelor’s thesis first briefly describes the relationship to the quality of life of diabetes. The main part deals with the mutual relationship between depression and diabetes including a basic pathophysiological mechanisms. A selection of clinical trials on the problem solving is followed. Finally, it provides a brief overview of the antidepressants in patients with diabetes and their side effects with special attention to the influence of body weight.

Keywords

diabetes mellitus; diabetic; depression; insulin; glukose; antidepressants