

ABSTRACT

The bachelor thesis describes structure, main properties and possible applications of polydopamine (PDA). The main focus of the work lies in the description of uses of the PDA, including in detection of chemical substances, in energetics and in biomedicine. The short experimental section studies quality of deposition of the PDA depending on the deposition time and on the types of used nanofiber materials.