

I would like to introduce you the dilemma of dying and death from the point of view of solicitous person. My bachelor thesis describes the problems of dying and death from the history till presents. In first few chapters I deal with diagnostics, fundamental notions and the history concerning dying person, dying and death itself. In the next theoretic chapters I follow the possibility of the financial support and the physical care. Two interviews with the employees from medical and social sphere and the story of the solicitous person from home care are inset. In the practical part I pay attention to research on the choice aim - the differences in dying and death in medical and social institution or at home.
