

Abstract

The aim of this thesis Biblical themes in the Journal of Catholic Clergy in the years 1921-1930 is to provide a list of articles with biblical themes outgoing in that journal in the period, indicating their content and assess their contribution to contemporary scientific discussion. I did not omit a brief information about the authors and discussion of the historical and cultural context of the time. The restricted period is characterized by lingering modernist crisis, which resulted in the church were hardly accepted by modern exegetical methods. The work is to assess the impact of this difficult period in the Czech Catholic exegesis and assess the attitudes Czech Bible scholars in this period. From the published articles is clear that Czech authors contributing to the magazine held a rather conservative attitudes, or do not enter into polemics, while gradually appropriation by some procedures of modern exegesis.
