

Abstract (in English):

This work focus on the topic of the educational staff in Vocational education schools with vocational training field. This type of secondary schools prepare pupils mainly for handicraft and this process should be led by qualified teachers.

The Act of Educational staff from 2005 describes teachers at schools facilities, sets the qualification prerequisites for their activities, their in-service training and partially career system. The training of teachers of practical education and teachers of practical training may consist of 4 years of study at a secondary school, followed 3 years of study tertiary professional education or 3 to 5 years at a university. Pedagogical training follows these studies, for graduates from non-pedagogical fields of studies usually represents a further 3 years of bachelor's studies or 2 years of studies on a life-long learning study programme at the university.

Teachers of practical education and teachers practical training get their vocational qualification at universities, tertiary schools and secondary schools in the field of study which correspond to the nature of the practical education. They must also have a teaching qualification. Graduates who have completed the secondary school with the final exam and obtained their teaching qualification during pedagogical studies need to have at least three years of professional experience. In order to be able to teach certain subject, a teacher of practical training must also have an apprenticeship certificate in the relevant field of study.

The quality of absolvent of secondary practical schools correspond with the quality of education of the practical training.